President Pellegrini Has

Financial Failure Feared in London.

Argentine Finances.

By Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, June 19.—The Bureau of American Republics has received a copy of the annual message of President Pellegrini of the Argentine Republic, laid before Congress in May last. He states the only exceptional measures he was compelled to adopt were declaring the city of Buenos Ayres in a state of siege and the suppression of a few newspapers that were stirring up strife. The concessions of national lands, covering 50,000 square miles, which had been made to speculators for colonization purposes was revoked, as holders of the concessions failed to carry out the conditions on which they obtained the lands. Many public works had of necessity been suspended for lack of funds. Assisted immigration from Europe had been stopped. The revenues for 1890 were, in currency, $73,400,000, and the expenditures were $92,850,000, leaving a deficit of $19,500,000. The revenues for 1891 had been calculated at $26,000,000 in gold. President Pellegrini expresses the hope that the country, by the aid of the "Moratorium" loan negotiated in London, would be able to pay its way the third year. The trade returns were encouraging; exports were increasing and imports declining.

The financial crisis, the President says, grows worse daily. Paper money, of which there are 200,000,000 in circulation, has sustained a loss of 80 per cent. He estimates the losses since the crisis began at 200,000,000 pounds sterling. The national bank now owes the treasury $60,000,000 in currency and $2,000,000 in gold. He considers the best solution of the financial difficulties would be to correct the deficit in the State bank system; revive the credit of the State banks and enable them to continue. For this purpose he recommends a parliamentary commission. But, he adds, the gold standard is the insuperable difficulty in the way of resuming specie payment; if we want a metallic basis we must resort to silver; all the objections raised against a silver standard may apply to Europe, but they do not affect us.

Financial Troubles.

By Cable and Associated Press.

LONDON, June 19.—There are rumors prevailing in financial circles here as to difficulties between Muritta and the head of the banking house. Muritta recently transferred into a limited liability company, and the trustees and executors of the new corporation have made a discovery that the liabilities of Muritta & Co. exceed the liabilities represented to the trustee and executors of the corporation. It is also said that fresh liabilities have been incurred since the formation of the limited liability company which require the further subscription of nearly $1,750,000 in order to avoid a calamity. That money is necessary for the immediate requirements of the company to be raised among stockholders, thus offering the concern temporary relief.

Cherokee Strip.

By Associated Press.

ARKANSAS CITY (Kan.), June 19.—It is stated here on good authority that a thoroughly organized body of boomers will shortly enter the Cherokee strip, cut all the fences and burn the grass, thus forcing the cattlemen off the land. Cattlemen on the strip without authority of law, have been warned by Secretary Koss of the Cherokee Nation that all cattle found trespassing will be seized.

A Boatmen's Row.

By Cable and Associated Press.

AMERHURSTBURG (Ont.), June 19.—Last evening the crew on the steam barge, Jane Cook, became intoxicated and had a general fight, in which six men were wounded. The Captain was shot through the lung and his recovery is doubtful. Another of the men may die, while others are not so badly wounded.

Telegraphers.

By Associated Press.

ST. LOUIS, June 19.—The Grand Division of the Order of Railroad Telegraphers has decided to purchase outright the organ of the Order of Railroad Telegraphers. It is now stated that the Railroad Telegraphers and the Brotherhood struck a snag in their negotiations looking to amalgamation, which, it is said, is caused by a clause in the law of the Railway people which provided that operators must have done railroad telegraphing for three years before he can become a member. The Brotherhood people are sticking out for a one year qualification. They say three years limit would bar out fully thirty per cent. of the commercial operators. Another conference between the two associations will be held to-day.

The following officers were elected for the ensuing year: A. D. Thurston, Vinton, Iowa, Grand Chief Telegrapher; S. O. Fox, Vinton, Grand Secretary and Treasurer; G. C. Ramsey, East St. Louis, Assistant Grand Chief Telegrapher; Senor Le Canda, Mexico, Grand Senior Telegrapher.

This morning the Judiciary Committee of the Order of Railroad Telegraphers and officers of the Brotherhood of Telegraphers met. The Judiciary Committee reported that the Grand Division refused to reduce the time of eligibility clause in their law, whereupon the Brotherhood officers called all the negotiations off. The Order of Railroad Telegraphers will apply for membership to the Federation of Railway Employees, but says assurance has been given the Brotherhood people by members of the council that neither organization will be admitted until amalgamation is reached.

Much Ado.

By Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, June 19.—The Department of State is informed that the German government has declined to surrender W. Hoyt, a defaulting employee of the Gas Light Company of Philadelphia. There is no extradition treaty with Germany covering Hoyt's offense, and while the German government is willing to surrender him without a specific treaty stipulation, it was only upon condition that this government would recognize a demand by the German government for the surrender of escaped criminals whose crimes were not covered by an existing treaty. Of course this condition could not be accepted. But in the meantime this government has been in communication with the government of Great Britain and is hopeful of securing Hoyt in the end. He is within British jurisdiction at Southampton where the extradition proceedings were begun, and the German steamship officers interference prevented his arrest there.

Treasury Balance.

By Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, June 19.—The statement of the United States Treasury issued to-day shows an apparent deficiency of $787,105. This, however, does not include $23,627,000 on deposit with national banks and $20,221,000 fractional silver. Including these two items, the balance is $43,061,000. Officials of the Secretary's office say, exclusively of national bank deposits and fractional silver, there is an actual available balance of $2,812,000 in the Treasury to-day and that the Treasurer's statement, including receipts to that date will show it. There will be a constant excess of receipts over expenditures during the remainder of the month, and the estimated net surplus will be at least seven million dollars by the first. Treasury officials say the government is amply able to meet all its obligations.

Poisoned Flour.

By Associated Press.

HAGERSTOWN (Md.), June 19.—Daniel Shiffer, a farmer living near Locust Grove, found in his lane near his place a package of flour and another of coffee. He sought for the owner, and not finding one, gave the articles to Mrs. McKurron. She used the flour and her entire family was made sick. One boy died and another is expected to die. The other members of the family will recover. An examination showed that poison was mixed with the flour. The authorities are convinced that the poisoned flour and coffee were intended for Shiffer's family and are looking for the miscreant among those known to be at enmity with the farmer.

To Determine Tariff.

By Associated Press.

PHILADELPHIA, June 19.—The jury in the Merer and Dickinson test suit against the government to recover duties paid on importations of hat trimmings, returned a verdict this morning in the United States Circuit Court in favor of plaintiffs. Plaintiffs claimed the goods were liable to 20 per cent. duty, while the officials held they were dutiable at 50 per cent. The government will appeal the verdict to the Supreme Court. By the verdict the government is liable for from twenty to thirty millions of dollars that it collected in duties from importers millinery materials in various parts of the country.

If we may judge of the enthusiasm manifested at the Ohio Republican Convention, we can safely count on that State giving an overwhelming majority two years hence for the Republican nominee for President. The party in power has the courage to deal with every question of national interest and is a party of acts, not of words and empty promises. Notwithstanding the opposition the tariff question has met with, it is now a settled fact that a very large majority of the people are emphatically in favor of a high tariff on goods of foreign manufacture. The present Administration has been aggressive, concise and clear-headed; it has shown to have the courage of its convictions. The opposition has been non-progressive and narrow in the extreme. The Democrats are now making love to the Farmers' Alliance in the hope of picking up a few crumbs to satisfy the greed and avarice of the broken-down back-number politicians whose only ambition is to get office.

During Cleveland's Administration the question was what to do with the surplus funds. Millions had accumulated. The plan of the Republican Administration was to employ these funds for the benefit of the country. The public debt in the meantime had been greatly reduced, and another part of it is to be funded at a lower rate of interest. The navy has been greatly enlarged, postal facilities have been greatly increased, millions of once idle money have gone into the pockets of workingmen, for honest service that has been performed in behalf of the country. That is only an outline of the record. But it is so satisfactory that the Republican Administration takes its stand on it and asks no quarter from the opposition.

Whether the Republican standard-bearer shall be Blaine, McKinley or Harrison, the Republican party has no apology to offer for its course on any question touching the vital interest of the nation, but will stand by its record, for it has been brave, conservative and honest.

THE rumors in regard to the solvency of a prominent life insurance company of New York will prove very disquieting to many people. If there is one institution in the country which should be as stable as the credit of the Government itself it is a life insurance company, for the very essence of its business is unimpaired credit through a long term of years. The law should be even more stringent about the examination of life insurance companies than about the solvency of savings banks, for while the latter hold the earnings of a large number of poor people, nearly every policy in a life insurance company represents the dependence of the widow or the orphan.

HAMILTON AIDE tells in a regretful way that home floriculture does not thrive in New England, because "labor is so dear." Better meat in the laborer's pot than flowers in the householder's front yard, if both cannot be had. There may also be the consideration that flowers need more coddling than in more favored parts of the world. Europeans come to the United States and lament the absence of some graces and luxuries to which they are accustomed without thinking of the cheapness of labor implied by such ministrations to the richer classes.

SENATOR EDMUNDS disavows an alleged interview printed in the New York World, in which he was made to criticize the present Administration. It is hardly necessary. Any publication in the World is subject to suspicion. That is the penalty of sensational journalism. It may do to believe half that such a newspaper publishes, but no one knows which half.

ITALIAN Radicals are calling for lower duties on cereals. This means increased purchase of American products. The policy of shutting the United States out of the European market is against nature, for this year, at any rate, and in a less degree, for all years.

A TERRIBLE TRIP.

Rounding a Dangerous Turn in the Good Old Coaching Days.

An Experience Which Made an Old Stage Driver Say His Prayers—A Madman's Wild and Fortunate Drive.

One of the most famous and most largely patronized stage routes of three decades ago was that which ran from Portland, Me., to Concord, says the New York World. In the suburbs of the latter city there now resides an old man who was once a famous driver over the line. His name is Reuben Hemmip, but in the good old days he was known far and wide as Reckless Rube. He was a daring and dashing "master of the ribbon," and had the reputation of always bringing his coach through on time.

"Ya-as," said old Rube, "I hev took many a ride over th' ole turnpike, an' I allers managed to git there on time, somehow. Once I skipped the last relay an' got into Kunk'rd party nigh 'n hour afore I was due. How's that? Well, you see, I only hed two passengers that day—a man an' his woman. The man was the drollest cuss ye ever see, an' he wanted ter ride on th' box. My assistant was laid off fur a day 'tend a funeral, an' so thar was room. Well, thar air fellow tole me that he was a driver hisself—that he'd driv from Virginia City, in Nevada, ter Sacramento, an' wanted me ter give him the ribbons. We war 'bout four mile from th' last relay afore gitten ter Kunk'rd, when I let him hev 'em, an' the way he swung that whip was a caution. The hosses jest plunged like mad, an' we went down the side o' the mounting's though old Nick war a chasin' in o's. The coach rocked an' swayed an' pitched, so that, reckless as I was in them days, I was afraid that she'd keel over an' spill us all into the ravine. I reached out an' tried to grab the lines, but gorrarnighty, I w'n't no use. That feller jest chuckled them lines clean outen his han' down across the hosses' backs, an' he kep' a swingin' that air gad till the hull six war a runnin' dead away. I was mad, there an' no use'n talkin', an' I grabbed the feller by the throat an' well, I don't know how it happened, but afore I c'd ha' said Jack Robinson I was on my back and the cuss was a holdin' me with one hand an' a flingin' the lash with t'other. It was jest at that minut that we passed the relay where the fresh hosses was all stan'in' in the road ready fur me. Cos' we only stopped there long enough ter change. But gorrarnighty, man! we went by 'em so swift-like that you c'dn't tole a hoss from a mule. The coach was a-rollin' like a row-boat in a hurrykane, an' the woman inside stuck her head outen the windy yeller like a Commancher injun. 'Bout half a mile ahead was a steep pitch, with a sharp turn at the bottom, an' a deep gully dead ahead. We was agoin' so like mad that I calkerated that we wouldn't make the turn, but keep right on to the bottom o' the gully 'mong the rock an' stuns. I thought over my 'Now I lay me, an' one or two others that I c'dn't remember's well, when all on a sudden we struck the pitch. Gorrarnighty! it was awful! We jest slid down same's though the bottom'd dropped out o' the road. When we reached the turn the hosses made it all right an' then the ole coach swung aroun' tew. Well, sir, thar air coach jest run on the two nigh wheels fur more'n forty rod, an' I lemed way over jest as fur's 't c'd 'bout point clear over. A quarter'n inch more'n we'd been goners, but bimely it setted back onto its four wheels kinder slow-like, cos' you see we was agoin' so fast that it c'dn't come down quick. There ain't much more tew tell, 'cept that we run into Kunk'rd the same way an' the hosses stopped cos' they c'dn't go no farder. That droll cuss on the box with me was a foam'n' at th' mouth, an' it tuk four men to hole him an' 'bout a dozen to cart him off. Crazy? Well, gorrarnighty, I should say so! Yes, the hosses got over it; the woman wasn't hurt nor the coach neither. Have a little weed drop o' pepper in yer cider, sir? Yes, that was the reckless drive I ever took."

ADDRESSING PACKAGES.
A Valuable Suggestion from an Old Expressman.

In so simple a matter as marking the destination of an express package, it is possible, according to the Express Gazette, to commit a costly error through sheer excess of caution. "Are you going to pay for that package at this end?" was the question asked by an express clerk, says the journal above mentioned, as he watched a lady, who, having wrapped up a package and addressed it on one side, was about to address it on the other side also. "Yes," she replied. "Do you want to pay twice?" asked the expressman. "You are very liable to be charged twice for an express package if you mark it on both sides. After a package is paid for in advance, or at the point of shipment, we mark it 'paid' on the side of the address. When the billing clerk gets that package, the chances are just even that he is presented with the side which is not marked paid, and he bills 'collect.' Never address both sides of the package. If by any means your package gets open, the bill accompanying it will tell the expressman where it goes."

Cost of Submarine Cables.
The life of a submarine telegraph cable is from ten to twelve years. If a cable breaks in deep water after it is ten years old it cannot be lifted for repairs, as it will break of its own weight. On this account the cable companies are prepared to put aside a large reserve fund in order to be prepared to replace their cables every ten years. The action of the sea is the great enemy of the submarine cable; it eats the iron away so completely as to turn the outside coating to dust or sediment, while the core is still intact. The breakage of an ocean cable is a very costly accident, owing to the difficulties to be encountered in repairing it. It often becomes necessary in case of a break to charter a ship at five hundred dollars per day for several days in succession trying to fix upon the location where the cable has parted. One breakage in the Direct Cable Company's line a few years ago cost that syndicate one hundred and twenty-five thousand dollars.

ESKIMO DIET.
Is Not Altogether Barbarous When You Acquire the Taste.
I had read about Eskimo eating habits, begins a writer in Goldthwaite's Magazine, how once upon a time, for instance, an Arctic explorer offered some Eskimo girls some sweetmeats, which were rejected, while tallow candles were eagerly accepted and eaten. Now I was to see an Eskimo eat. With many smiles Peter entered the cabin and sat down at the table. I should have apologized to him on account of the scantiness of our fare, for we had no candles and there wasn't a bit of tallow on deck even, let alone in the cabin, but I noticed that the butter plate was heaping full, the sight of which made me wish for some of my friends so that we could make a pool on the number of bites he would take in swallowing the roll. Then Peter sat down and without ceremony helped himself to a lot of baked beans, a piece of dry bread and a large piece of very lean salt beef, all of which he bit into and swallowed as a hungry longshoreman might have done. Then he took more beans and more bread and more lean beef, and with them several cups of coffee with a great deal of sugar to each cup. He was a long time getting to it, but he didn't begin on the butter. He had posted his last cup of coffee and was looking about for something to eat with when his eye fell on a plate of cake. Taking a small piece, he put a small lump of butter on it and slowly ate the combination with the coffee. To the reader of a geographical magazine it may seem strange, but the fact is that Eskimos of south Greenland showing the habits and tastes of those living a thousand miles farther up the coast. I had not quite expected to find them living in snow houses, but I had a misty idea that an Eskimo was a little black Indian, whose chief delight among the things brought from a civilized country was the tallow candle. The staple food is seal meat and blubber. Next to that is the little fish taken in the fiord and dried for winter use, known to them as the augmatfat and to the learned as the salmo villosus. A favorite way of eating the dried augmatfat is to take it by the tail, poke it into the oily blubber for awhile and then chew it down. Awful, isn't it? It is almost as bad as eating sardines. There is a deal in the name. Blubber is disgusting; oil, for use on a salad, is delicious and indispensable. I have eaten seal oil and found it (very unexpectedly) good. I had supposed it would have a flavor of fish oil. There is no such flavor about it. It is equal to the best extract of cotton seed—that quality sold as olive oil in all American groceries. Augmatfat and blubber, under a French label, would be deemed a luxury in New York as in Arhusk. For the rest the Eskimos trade seal oil and skins to their governor for three kinds of hardtack, for coffee, sugar and tea. They catch Arctic codfish (misarkornak in Eskimo and gadus navis in the books) and salmon in the seasons; they shoot no end of geese, ducks, ptarmigans and the Arctic hare; they have eggs in endless quantity in the season, and very many foxes are trapped. The fox is to the Eskimo what the possum is to the plantation dandy. He likes to smoke, and under favoring circumstances will swap anything he's got, including his wife, for rum.

THE WHISTLING BOY.

He Gets a Good Word from a Man Who Has Faith in His Future.

If even in the course of human events heaven blesses me with an heir of the small boy class, says a writer in the Louisville Post, I shall teach him to whistle early in his young career and encourage him to warble merrily away throughout the sunshine and the shade of youth and age. I never see a youngster with his hands shoved down in his pants pockets, his head thrown back, his cheeks swelled out like a pair of bellows and his puckered lips piping a jolly tune that I don't set that boy down as an innocent-hearted lad who wouldn't do anything more harmful than rob a watermelon patch or such. He wouldn't tell a malicious lie or do a cowardly trick.

These are the works of a sly youngster with the averted eye and the soft tread, who is afraid to whistle lest he make a noise and attract attention. The whistling boy never makes the footpad or the cut throat, though he may never be president. I can't help having my suspicions about a man who never learned to whistle in his youth. In nine cases out of ten he has a falsetto voice and a bad digestion, and his ideas on many points of morality are questionable.

His Weak Point.
A wife, whose husband has a bulging brain and a homely face, used to try to make things pleasant at home by expressing her admiration of his talents and giving him the pet name of "Brains." Her delicate flattery did not seem to have much influence upon him, though she kept it up for a whole year after their marriage. One time, not long ago, when she was in a happy frame, or melting mood, or meditative state, she expressed her admiration of his comely countenance, and at last went so far as to say she would give him the pet name of "Beauty." He smiled as she repeated the word with a full consciousness that she had touched his weak point. And now, whatever be his mood of mind or the vicissitudes of life, that word dispels all other thought, and the twain are happy.

Bad Blood.

Impure or vitiated blood is nine times out of ten caused by some form of constipation or indigestion that clogs up the system, when the blood naturally becomes impregnated with the effete matter. The old Sarsaparilla attempt to reach this condition by attacking the blood with the drastic mineral "potash." Joy's Vegetable Sarsaparilla goes to the seat of the trouble. It arouses the liver, kidneys and bowels and invigorates the circulation, and the impurities are quickly carried off through the natural channels.

Charles Lee, of Beamish's Third and Market Sts., S. F., writes: "I took Joy's Sarsaparilla and while on the first bottle became convinced of its merits, for I could feel it was working a change. It cleansed, purified and braced me up generally, and everything is now working full and regular."

The Druggists

In Lowell, Mass., agree in saying that they sell more of Hood's Sarsaparilla than of all other blood purifiers. For instance: F. C. GODDARD: I sell more of Hood's Sarsaparilla than all other blood purifiers. A. W. DOWS & CO.: Hood's takes the lead of all other sarsaparillas. C. F. BLANCHARD: We sell more of Hood's Sarsaparilla than of any similar. MARSTON & SHAW: With us the sale of Hood's is 10 to 1 of any other kind. F. & E. BAILEY & CO.: Hood's Sarsaparilla is one of the best medicines. CARLTON & HOVEY: Hood's Sarsaparilla is one of the best medicines we have. Its sale increases every year. F. P. MOODY: We sell twice as much of Hood's Sarsaparilla as of anything similar. C. A. STANT: Hood's is the most popular sarsaparilla of the day. THIRTY OTHER DRUGGISTS speak similarly. This popularity at home, where Hood's Sarsaparilla and its proprietors have been known for many years, could not continue if the medicine did not possess merit. And these facts should certainly convince people in other sections of the country that Hood's Sarsaparilla is a good, reliable medicine.

CAMEO CUTTING.

A Visit to the Roman Studios Where the Work is Done.
Specimens of Wonderful Skill in Carving Onyx and Shells-Lifelike Portraits of Historical Personages and Noted People.

After falling into raptures over a few minutes, the visitor to Rome usually turns his attention to cameos and loses himself heart and soul in admiration of all the gods and goddesses that were ever heard of, from Jupiter to the veriest little love. He has seen cameos here or there all his life and paid little attention to them; but here in their birthplace, their home, he develops a passion for them that would affect a heart of stone, which these gods and goddesses always possess. And truly cameos are to be admired; down them who will, fashion or no fashion, as an exquisite work of art there is nothing more beautiful.

One of the most interesting cameo studios, says the Jeweler's Review, is that of Francesco Clapponi, on the Via Sistina. Signor Clapponi has had twenty years of practice in cameo cutting, and your correspondent is indebted to him for much valuable information on this interesting study. He has been called the modern Michael Angelo by some of his American admirers, and not undeservedly, for more exquisite work than his would be hard to find. His specialty is portraits, and these develop from the stone quite as truthful as from the crayon work, in which he is also an expert. One of his best works is a portrait of Queen Marguerita, of Italy. The likeness is exact, and the famous pearls, string after string, about her neck stand out in individual perfection. The portrait of the queen of England, not forgetting Cook, and other people, not to mention the most famous of the past, are exquisitely finished portraits of Mary Stuart, after an antique painting. The relief is in flesh color, against a dark red background. Every point in the high lace ruffles at the throat stands out delicately, while the entire lace is almost transparent-is, in fact, when held to the light.

Cameos are sometimes of shell and sometimes of stone. Those of shell are most common and are more easily made than those of stone, because the shell is softer and yields more readily to the drill. The shells are of the conch order and are brought from the sea at different ports of Italy. The stone comes mostly from India, some from Germany. It belongs to the family of quartz, (banded), and comes in various combinations of color, the rarest being a deep, clear red; the most common one black and white. The stone comes cut in different sizes ready for the artist to begin work on. They cost from two to thirty or more frames each, according to size and quality.

After a plaster cast has been made from a drawing or portrait the artist sketches from the cast on the stone he is about to cut and proceeds to chip away all surplus portions of the upper part of the stone. He does this by the use of a small fastened in a machine worked by the foot. The drills used are very fine and while at work the artist looks through a magnifying glass. These drills require constant cutting down and the application of diamond dust, as the stone is so hard. The stone, too, requires constant rubbing off, for the drill blackens and so misleads the artist unless continual care is given. It takes from three to thirty days to cut a stone cameo. The artist must understand drawing and measurements well, as after the first outline cutting he is almost wholly dependent upon the exactitude of his eye. The finishing work is very delicate. A miscut, and a nose is spoiled, an ear taken off, or the fascinating curl of a mustache forever lost. It is sweet and poetical to wear a loved one's face cut in cameo, but woe to the artist who by a slight deviation makes Genevieve's mouth too large or converts the classical nose of Clarence into a snub.

Intaglios are very much in favor at the present time. They are just the reverse of the cameos, the subject being cut below the level of the stone. Many of these are made for the purpose of seals, and give a perfect impression. It has been said that Moses wore an intaglio ring, and we have no more reason to doubt than to believe it. No one suspects Moses of not doing the proper thing, and if he had the good taste to wear an intaglio, he is all the more worthy of admiration. However, intaglios are known to have been of very ancient origin.

Intaglios are cut in stones of one color, and are best when the stones are translucent. They appear in most delicate shades, and the sunken engraving is sometimes wonderful in its minuteness. Many famous paintings as well as statues are copied in this manner, and the production is often as marvelous as the original. The "Aurora" of Guido Rini is almost as beautiful cut into dark stone as when in light relief in colors. Where so many figures are grouped it is really a wonderful thing to produce them in such minute proportions as seen in these intaglios. What ever other arts the Italians may be proficient in, that of stone cutting is followed to perfection, and such beautiful works cannot be governed by the whims of style. However, Dame Fashion smiles with the infatuated visitor on cameos and promises to favor them for some time to come.

She: "No, papa has no positive objection to you. He merely thinks you a little too-too indolent, as it were. He says you seem to have no object in life, so to speak." He: "No object in life? He surely doesn't take you into consideration at all."

"HELLO, old fellow, going to hunt?" "Yes, to-day for the first time. The first rabbit I shoot is for my wife, the second belongs to my daughter, and the third I mean to give to you." "That is very kind of you, but would you mind shooting the third rabbit first?"

LITERARY Note.-"I see that in the preface of your book you state that it is written to fill a long felt want. What do you mean by that?" "What do I mean by that? Why, I've been needing a square meal for the last eighteen months. Don't you call that a long felt want?"

SINCE LAST WE MET.

A MAN is to walk on stilts from Paris to Moscow.
AN Albany (Kan.) paper publishes the following item: "John Thompson's dogs are all dead but twelve."

A BARN-STORMING relic is being advertised in Kansas as "the woman Henry M. Stanley was stuck on fifteen or twenty years ago."

A lot of land in Cincinnati thirty-nine by ninety feet in dimensions, once bought for four dollars, recently sold for ninety thousand dollars in cash.

CANNIBALS are evidently on the increase in Washington. An advertisement in one of the papers reads: "Wanted-A white girl for cooking."

The merchants of Sturgeon, Mo., have entered into an ironclad agreement to enforce the cash system in that town. "Anyone caught selling goods on credit forfeits all his outstanding accounts."

A BED quilt consisting of 23,223 pieces, has just been completed by a maiden lady of Quakertown, N. J. It is two yards wide, and two and a quarter yards in length, and over two years were spent in making it.

HENS and chickens worth two thousand dollars appear attracted curious sightseers at the poultry show in New York, while domestic fowls, worth each only a few hundreds, were so common that they hardly won any notice.

A MAN known as "Buffalo" Jones lately furnished the novelty of a sale of a herd of buffalo at public auction in Garden City, Ia. There was a mortgage on the herd which Mr. Jones could not lift, and the sheriff did the rest.

Mr. WELLS, of Baiting Hollow, L. I., is now nearly eighty years of age, and he has kept an account of the number of cords of wood cut during his life, and reports it as 13,781. About thirty years ago, on a wager, he cut, but did not pile, ten cords of pine wood between sunrise and sunset.

What an "Inch" of Rain Means.
Few people can form a definite idea of what is involved in the expression: "An inch of rain." It may aid such to follow this curious calculation: An acre is equal to 2,727,400 square inches; an inch deep of water on this area will be as many cubic inches of water, which at 27 to the gallon is 22,000 gallons. This immense quantity of water will weigh 220,000 pounds, or 100 tons. One hundredth of an inch (0.01) alone is equal to one ton of water to the acre.

"August Flower"
Mrs. Sarah M. Black of Seneca, Mo., during the past two years has been affected with Neuralgia of the Head, Stomach and Womb, and writes: "My food did not seem to strengthen me at all and my appetite was very variable. My face was yellow, my head dull, and I had such pains in my left side. In the morning when I got up I would have a flow of mucus in the mouth, and a bad, bitter taste. Sometimes my breath became short, and I had such queer, tumbling, palpitating sensations around the heart. I ached all day under the shoulder blades, in the left side, and down the back of my limbs. It seemed to be worse in the wet, cold weather of Winter and Spring; and whenever the spells came on, my feet and hands would turn cold, and I could get no sleep at all. I tried everywhere, and got no relief before using August Flower. Then the change came. It has done me a wonderful deal of good during the time I have taken it and is working a complete cure."
